CLEVER BLIND CHILDREN.

Act Upon the Stage Without Making a Single Mistake in the Whole Performance.

A company of blind children enacted the play, "Jack, the Giant Killer," at St. Louis recently, reports an exchange of that city.

It was their first attempt in the histrionic line and was pronounced the success of the season by the theatergoers. The children belong to the Missouri school for the blind, and the entertainment was arranged in celebration of the institution's fifty-first anniversary.

The teachers made all of the costumes and trained the performers for weeks beforehand. The latter entered into the spirit of the occasion with all of the zest which more favored children might have exhibited. The remarkable feature was the keenness of perception which they displayed. Guided by some instinct, they never made one false step, but passed and repassed each other on the stage and always found their respective places without a collision. Their movements were all ease and freedom and grace and their steps were as firm and full of confidence as though they had been blessed with the brightest and keenest of eyes.

Sightless lords and ladies bowed to a blind king and queen in courtly style. A blind fairy waved her wand over their majesties without once touching their crowns. The blind Giant Blunderbore marched in all his terrible might across the stage with the most threatening strides and blind Jack the Giant Killer strutted gloriously up and down with his trusty sword. It was all done with such astonishing accuracy, and never was there a mistake in word or action. The orchestra which furnished the music was composed of 15 blind boys, and the attendants of the king and queen numbered some 20 sightless little ones.

So that it was a company which really crowded the narrow stage and made the excellence of the performance all the more notable. A particularly pretty scene was the part in which Jack led the Princess and Fairy Good in a dance which was very much like the Virginia reel.

After the play S. M. Green, superintendent of the institution, was the recipient of many congratulations upon the histrionic achievements of his pupils.

"They can do things and accomplish good in the world just the same as people that have eyes," he said, proudly. "Our motto is this: 'It is the soul that sees.'"

"We took that motto several years ago to impress on the public the fact that blind people are not a lot of hapless, unfortunate creatures, as some suppose. Aside from the misfortune of being deprived of their sight, blind children are just like other children. They are affectionate, they like to romp and play, they want to be out in the fresh air and sunshine, and they enjoy hearing the songs of the birds and smelling the perfume of the flowers."

A capacity for tears is a necessity for any woman who aspires to fame and fortune on the emotional stage. Not that she need be given to an unnecessary shedding of them in private life, but she must have them at her command before the footlights.

TEARS IN THE VOICE

By ELLEN TERRY.

Nothing about her speech that suggests emotion, a something that is more easily explained as "tears in the voice" than in any other way.

Remain a child if you would succeed as an actress. The child has every quality necessary to achieve success. They have the uncultivated "tears in the voice," and the successful actress is but a grown-up child.

Point to any of the great emotional actresses of history and you will find that they were either gifted with or had cultivated this quality. They would not have succeeded without it. It is far more essential than oratorical ability. It will move an audience when all else fails.

SHADY RESTING PLACE.

An Arrangement That Adds to the Comfort of the Farmer's Family During the Dog Days.

Where the trees about one's house are small, or where there are none, this arrangement will be found pleasant in summer. The floor and framework of this shady resting place are made of wood, while the covering is either white duck or striped awning cloth, sold at all dry goods stores—the only fault to be found with the latter being its liability to fade. The board floor is very desirable, since it permits the use of this when the grass ground would be moist. The smooth floor also affords a splendid chance for children to play in wet weather, or indeed in any weather, since their clothing will become soiled much less easily when playing on such a floor than upon grass ground or gravel.

This place can also be made to shelter a hammock, stretching this from one corner to an opposite corner. The roof frame should, of course, be braced in the same direction as that occupied by the hammock, running a two by three strip of lumber from the top of one corner post to the top of the one opposite; also placing a similar piece between the tops of the other two opposite corners. The cloth gables should be fitted to the frame and tacked in position, after which the roof, side and end flaps (all in one piece) can be stretched into position, and held in place either by tacking or by cords through eyelet holes and tied about the frame.—Country Gentleman.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Make the boy's interest in the farm so profitable that he will be anxious to make farming his life work.

The farmer as well as the business man who is going to forge to the front these times is the one who thinks and plans.

Broom corn should have frequent cultivation till the plants are two feet high. Then the cultivation may be stopped unless needed to retain moisture.

If one has been so unwise as to have gotten in more area of crops than he can cultivate properly it may pay him even now to abandon some of it and cultivate thoroughly the remaining portion.

Irrigation produces such large returns for the outlay that many farmers could well afford to invest in an irrigation plant of their own if not in an arid or semi-arid region where irrigation is carried on by means of great systems.—Farmers' Voice.

Brome Grass Beats Timothy.
Brome grass and timothy were grown at the North Dakota station to compare the yields of green grass and to study their relative value for hay, considering their yield and chemical composition. In five cuttings during the season brome grass yielded 5,537.6 pounds of green grass, or 1,628.3 pounds of dry matter per acre, and timothy 4,681.6 pounds of green forage, or 1,422.8 pounds of dry matter. The results were decidedly in favor of brome grass for permanent pasture. Brome hay contained about twice as much protein as timothy, and no more fiber than the average for timothy grown in different parts of the country. Owing to its larger root system, brome grass is considered a better humus producer and soil improver than timothy.

Ration for Young Turkeys.
Feed the young turkeys stale wheat and corn bread. A few hard-boiled eggs mixed in the bread with a little salt and pepper is good for the first week. Don't forget to give them plenty of grit in the way of sand mixed with their feed or broken shells, dishes or lime rock. The main thing to keep turkeys healthy and growing fat is to keep them clear of lice. Commence on the old hen before they are hatched. Dust the hen twice a week with ashes and a few drops of coal oil added, grease the hen and young turkeys as soon as they are hatched with fresh butter or lard with a drop or two of coal oil to every teaspoonful.

Feeding Soy Beans to Hogs.
Prof. C. E. Curtis, of the Iowa experiment station recommends that if a person has corn, soy beans and shorts to feed to a sow with pigs, the best way is to grind the corn and beans and feed with the shorts in the form of slop. The proportion recommended is 25 pounds of corn, 60 pounds of shorts and 15 pounds of soy beans. Two feeds a day of soaked corn is also recommended. Soy beans are a new feed, and it will do no harm to use even a smaller proportion until the sow and pigs are used to it if it has never been fed. The feed should be mixed when dry and made into a slop later. This will insure better mixing and more satisfactory results.

GOT A DOWER FOR HIS BRIDE.

Shrewd Westerner Headed Subscription List and Donations Were Liberal.

Some years ago when the west was wilder and more woolly than it is to-day a young man, since grown rich and now famous as a financier and capitalist, was a regular boarder at a hotel in a frontier town. He and a number of his friends were wont to resort every evening to the smoking-room of the hotel which they used as a sort of club and their wants were attended to by a fair waitress who may be called Miss White. She was a nice, quiet girl, without any nonsense about her and attended to the wants of her patrons with regularity and promptitude, relates the Chicago Chronicle.

One evening after she had retired for the night the landlord informed the company that this was the last night she would wait upon them, as she was going to be married next day. When the landlord had gone out Jimmie Hughes, the young man referred to, got up and said he thought it only right that they should show their appreciation of her services by making her a little present on this auspicious occasion. He took a sheet of paper, wrote his name down for $200 and passed it round. The girl was popular and the idea caught on and when it came round again to generous Jimmie the total amounted to something over $2,000. They summoned the landlord, handed over the amount to him and asked him to give it to Miss White next morning with their hearty good wishes for her happiness. Next day she was married and the happy bridegroom was—Jimmie Hughes.

ORTHOGRAPHICALLY OFF.

A Hitch in Spelling That Was Smoothed Out by a Harvard Graduate.

They were making copies of inventory lists when a doubt arose as to the accuracy of the spelling of jardiniere in the original copy. Miss Brown, called the typewriter, "please spell 'jardiniere'." "Certainly," returned Miss Brown, blithely. "J-a-r-d-i-n-i-e-r-e." "Oh, I don't think that second syllable is spelled 'd-a-n'." Mr. Wyeth, will you spell 'jardiniere'?" "J-a-r-d-i-n-i-e-r-e," returned Mr. Wyeth.

The typewriter blushed, says the New York Sun. Mr. Wyeth was a partner, and it's hard to tell a partner he can't spell. "I don't think that's quite right," she faltered. "Let's look in the dictionary."

The dictionary was an old edition and didn't contain the word. Suddenly hope loomed large in the person of the senior partner's son. He was fresh from Harvard, and the entire office appealed to him through Mr. Wyeth: "Say, Ransome, spell 'jardiniere'." "Search me!" replied Ransome. "Put the thing down as a flower pot." Which they did.

A JUDGE'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

MRS. JUDGE McALLISTER.

We would caution all people against accepting substitutes for Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd St., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any."

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged."

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrh tonics are to be found in many drug-stores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.
